

MILLIONKIDS

Because one million kids are trafficked each year

Opal Singleton is the President and CEO of Million Kids and Board Member and Director of Development for Rapha House International. Both organizations exist to combat human trafficking in the U.S and Internationally. Opal has trained tens of thousands of Government Officials, School Administrators, Social Outreach Organizations, Civic Leaders, Faith Based Organizations and prominent individuals about Human Trafficking in the U.S. and around the globe. Opal is also an Instructor at the USC Sol Price Safe Communities Institute and an Instructor at Los Angeles Fire Training Academy. Opal serves on the California Baptist University Deans Advisory Board for Global Social Justice Outreach

Opal has completed the Robert Preseley Institute of Criminal Investigation Instructor Course and recently has served on the POST (Peace Officers Standardized Training) panel to develop the training curriculum on human trafficking including sex and labor trafficking for law enforcement for California.

MillionKids.org serves as the Training Outreach Coordinator for the Riverside County Anti Human Trafficking Task Force and is contracted for Training Services for the Riverside County Sheriff through a Department of Justice Grant. Opal has developed and trademarked a program called "The Love Trap" to educate teenagers, parents and school administrators about being coerced or seduced into prostitution, pimping, drug carrying and selling rings. "Grace, Hope and Fatherhood" is a program developed by Opal Singleton and Pastor Kerry Decker for the Faith Based Community to provide quality programs that will prevent kids from becoming victims of trafficking.

Opal is the author of a new book Seduced, The Grooming of America's Teenagers created to educate parents and grandparents about social media apps and on line gaming programs (MMORPG's) and how they are used to access, groom and recruit unsuspecting kids so they can be exploited. The book is currently rated 5 stars by Amazon Senior Book Reviewers. Opal regularly appears on radio talk shows and TV throughout the nation educating listeners on sex trafficking. Opal has just launch her radio show Exploited: Crimes Against Humanity broadcasting weekly at 7 AM PST to 170 countries on Voice America Variety Channel and the show is now the number one show on Voice America Variety Channel

Working closely with Law Enforcement, Opal often sits with parents of kids who are being recruited into the "The Life" or have already gone missing. Opal spends countless hours training the public about how human traffickers operate and looking for missing kids that may be in the life. She counsels kids who have become victims of "sextortion" as an illicit photo is being illegally distributed throughout the world.

As a Board Member and Director of Development, Opal works with Rapha House International to create vocational programs for at risk and trafficked girls in South East Asia. Rapha House provides rescue and healing programs for victims of child sex trafficking in Thailand, Mynamar, Cambodia and Haiti.

In 2012, Opal was awarded the "Ruby Award" by Riverside Soroptomist Club for her work in combating Human Trafficking and the "Individual Excellence" award for Non Profit Organizations by 211 Community Connect. Recently Opal was awarded the "Child and Family Advocate of the Year" award through the 'HOPE FOUNDATION' sponsored by the Family Services Association of Riverside County. Million Kids was recently awarded one of the prestigious Regina Napper awards for exemplary non-profit organizations for Southern California.

Opal retired after a long career in International Marketing where she accrued nearly 3 million frequent flyer miles. This gave her an opportunity to witness exploitation and poverty in every continent on earth. She has dedicated her retirement years to saving children from exploitation where ever she can.

Opal is married to Del Singleton, her friend and life partner of over 42 years. She loves archeology, travel, and is a successful glass and acrylic painting artist.
